[illegible]NTELLIGENCE

FRIDAY EVENING, 13TH JULY 1877.

Consols yesterday declined from 94⅛ to 94¼, but French Rentes were unaltered at 107. Wheat was unchanged, but Seeds have again advanced; Calcutta Linseed, to arrive, 6d. to 9d. and ex Warehouse 3d. per quarter; Calcutta Rapeseed ex-Warehouse 1s; Bombay Linseed ex-Warehouse 6d. and Rapeseed 1s. per quarter.

The Liverpool Cotton Market yesterday closed firm, sales 10,000 bales, but prices are still unchanged, and to all appearance a position has been reached from which there is not likely to be much movement for some time unless important influence is manifested. Piece Goods in Manchester are still quiet, and from what we can learn, unchanged.

Yesterday's telegrams from New York quote ready Mid. Uplands unchanged at 12½ and October shipment at 11 9-16 cents per lb. The receipts at the ports yesterday were 500 bales against 600 for the corresponding date last year.

Coffee in London is unchanged, as also is Cocoanut Oil.

The Bank of England return for the week ending on Wednesday shows an increase in the Reserve of £700,000 and in Bullion of the same amount, while Bills Discounted have decreased by £2,100,000. The proportion of the Reserve to Liabilities has thus advanced from 42⅛ to 45 11 16 per cent., and it is accordingly no matter for surprise that the Bank rate of discount has been reduced again to 2 per cent. So long as England is not herself dragged in, it is very evident that the effect of the existing war between Russia and Turkey, by restricting business, will really be to cheapen money instead of rendering it dearer.

Enfaced Rupee Paper is quoted the same as on the previous day:—Fours and Fours-and-a-half, 83⅞; Fives-and-a-half, 89½. Bar Silver according to Reuter has advanced from 53½d. to 54d. per oz., but the latter rate has been quoted by private telegrams for some time past. Yesterday's P. & O. steamer from Southampton brings £60,000 in Silver for Bombay and £30,000 for Calcutta, and we hear that there are also large shipments for China. The fact of the price remaining so little affected by the steady buying that has been going on for some weeks past is pretty good evidence of liberal supplies being available, whatever may be reported to the contrary.

Sterling Exchange to-day has been very firm and rates are partially 1-16d. higher at the close. Transactions have been few and there is nothing to show any change in prospects, the present firmness being attributable probably to the effect of the Government loan. We quote:—

Bank Bills, on demand	1s. 8 25-32d.	per Rupee.
Do. 6 months' sight	1s. 9¼d.	"
Credits, 3 " "	1s. 9¼d.	"
Documents, 3 " "	1s. 9 3-16d.	"

On Calcutta we still quote demand at ¼ to 3/16 premium, 60 days' sight ¼ per cent discount.

In Government Paper the only business we have heard of is some small purchases of Fours at Rs. 97, but of large amounts there are no buyers at the moment, and the rate is therefore to some extent nominal. We quote Fours-and-a-half, Rs. 97½; Five-and-a-half, Rs. 102¼.

The Share Market is quiet with in most cases an easier tendency. Bank of Bombays are still firm at 43¼ per cent. premium. In Land Companies the only change is a decline of Rs. 5 in Colabas and in Press Companies a fall of Rs. 5 in Mofussils. Spinning and Weaving shares are dull and generally the turn lower. We note a decline of Rs. 5 in Colaba, Dhurrumsey, Fleming, Manockjee Petit, Nursey and Oriental, Rs. 10 in Alexandra and Great Eastern and Rs. 25 in Alliance Spinning.

Cotton continues very firm, and the few transactions which have taken place to-day show an advance of Re. 1 to Rs. 2 per candy. For local Spinning some small purchases of half-pressed Dholleras and Wudwan are reported at Rs. 191 for the former and Rs. 188 for the latter, and for export Kharanja has been bought at Rs. 188 and Sheaganm at Rs. 192½ per candy full-pressed. We quote:—

Good Dholleras	1-eady.....	Rs. 197 per candy F.P.
F. G. F. do.	"	193 "
G. F. do.	"	189 "
Good Comras.	"	195 "
F. G. F. do.	"	191 "
G. F. do.	"	186 "

Seeds are very firm with an upward tendency owing to the combined influence of an advance at home and short supplies here. We quote Linseed at Rs. 6-6 and Rapeseed at Rs. 7-5 to Rs. 7-6 per cent.

Wheat is very firm, although for export the demand is not particularly active. Best White is held for Rs. 37, mixed Rs. 35 to Rs. 36 and Red for Rs. 32 to Rs. 33 per candy.

Freights are dull at previous rates. To close up a steamer for Liverpool yesterday £1-10 was accepted, but the nominal rate to-day is £1-15 per ton. By sail the quotation is £1-17- 6 per ton.

Piece Goods show no change in position. Buyers hold back and will continue to do so until accounts from the country take a turn for the better. Meanwhile prices are very weak, and sales are only practicable by accepting less than current rates.

WE are informed that a Court of Inquiry assembled at Kirkee on the 11th July to investigate and report on certain grave charges made by some women of the Royal Engineers against the Medical Officer in charge of the Sappers and Miners. The Committee was composed of Majors Anderson, Heroy, and Blew.

LIEUTENANT-COLONEL F. JEBB, of the 67th Regiment, is spoken of as a likely successor in the Adjutant-Generalship of the Madras Army to Brigadier-General Stewart, whose time is up next month.

BABU RAJENDRANATH MITRA, Head Assistant in the Judicial Department of the Bengal Secretariat, has been appointed to the newly-created post of Extra Assistant Secretary to the Government of Bengal. The Babu has served in the Secretariat for many years.

WE see it stated that great interest is manifested by the Mahomedans of Calcutta in the progress of the Turko-Russian War. Extraordinaries are daily issued by the Urdoo Guide, both in Arabic and English ; and these extras are read aloud to an anxious and attentive audience, so that the most illiterate man in the city knows something of what is going on.

A PROPOSAL lately made by the Government of Madras to transfer the duties of Paymasters of native regiments from the Adjutants to the Quartermaster Sergeants, has been negatived by the Government of India.

THE Government of India has sanctioned the estimate, amounting to Rs. 9,98,340, of the cost of doubling the Umbatur and Arkonam section of the Madras Railway.

IT is said that Col. R. Benton, Military Assistant to the Chief Commissioner, Mysore, will retire immediately from the service, with the special bonus of a year's salary from the Mysore Government, in addition to Army allowances.

WE understand that the Government of India have authorised the carrying out of certain tidal observations at selected points on the coast of India, the general superintendence and control of which will be entrusted to Captain Baird, R. E., Deputy Superintendent in the Great Trigonometrical Survey Department. The measure will not, it is said, entail any fresh charge on Imperial funds. Instructions have already been issued as to the preliminary steps to be taken for the determination of the points where observations should be carried out, and to the provision of the necessary tide guages from port funds.

IT appears that notwithstanding the vigorous efforts made by the Police and the Magistrate of Midnapore, the authors of the murder of Babu Nobin Chunder Nag have not yet been discovered. The tragedy has sent a thrill of horror into the hearts of all in the district, who have to deal with Mahomedan ryots.

THE following complimentary notice of the late Captain P. Marindin, of the Royal (Madras) Engineers, appears in the Chief Engineer's Review, N. W. Provinces, of irrigation works, 1875-76. "Captain Marindin's untimely death is a most serious loss to this department, and will long be lamented by many in these provinces. Held in sincere respect and regard by all with whom he had to deal, for his calm sound judgment and unvarying courtesy, when those who knew him best wish to recall a marked example of sterling worth, of manly unaffected character, and of steady trusty friendship, they will think of Philip Marindin."

NOT long since, the death of the Rev. F. Baylis of Neyoor, South Travancore, a Missionary of long standing and an excellent Tamil scholar, was announced. This was soon followed by the death of the Rev. E. Mid winter of Vizagapatam, after a residence in India of only a little more than a year. We now hear that the Rev. S. Jones, of Nagercoil, died in London, in the early part of last month. He came to this country about twenty years ago, labouring first in the Coimbatore district, and subsequently in Travancore. The loss of these missionaries will be severely felt at a time when nearly all the stations of the Society in South India are undermanned.

THE Military Department in this country, from the Military Member of Council downwards, says the Civil and Military Gazette, has languished under the sheer incompetence and want of sense and discernment which has ruled it for the last seventeen years. We desire to see a total change in its administration. The present Military Member of Council is, we believe, a capable man, but the task of infusing vigorous life into his present Secretariat will demand ceaseless effort and no small courage and will. We know what vested interests mean. The very first thing to be done, however, is to put in as Military Secretary some officer who has not been trained in the school of Sir H. Norman. The Viceroy's Military Secretary has the sort of capacity and energy which should find suitable work here. For the clerks there is always plenty of suitable work too, but it should be relegated to clerks. We could suggest more than one good name for the office of Adjutant-General, Colonels T. D. Baker and Greaves for instance. With a strong and capable Military Member of Council, Military Secretary, and Adjutant-General, we should certainly expect to see some very desirable activity and a change in the organization and in the spirit of the armies of India, which the times imperatively call for.

ON Sunday morning last, Colour-Sergeant Crane, of 2-12th Regiment at Fort William, committed suicide. The deceased it appears was addicted to drink, and in consequence was very frequently on bad terms with Colonel McKay, the Commanding Officer, as well as some of his comrades in the regiment. On Saturday night he returned to his barracks at a late hour very much under the influence of liquor, and on the following morning knowing that he was under strict surveillance felt that his conduct would be productive of disgrace to himself and the regiment. On Sunday morning at 6 o'clock, one of his comrades who gave him some water to drink at his request, thought that he looked rather depressed in mind, but as his duties called him away, he left the deceased in his barracks. At about 7 o'clock the report of firearms attracted some soldiers, who went down and found the deceased lying dead with his rifle on his chest. There was a large portion of his temple, a part of the jaw, and a portion of the ear blown off. It is presumed that the deceased while in this state of mind had tied a handkerchief to the trigger of his rifle, and having placed the muzzle to his mouth caused it to go off by pulling the trigger with his foot. Strange to say that search was made all over the room for the ball of the rifle, but without success.

AT the meeting of the Church Conference in Calcutta, the question which has caused so much heart burning in Ceylon, "the relation of Missionary Societies to Diocesan organisation," was discussed. The Bishop asked the conference to express an opinion as to whether it was or was not desirable that the relations between the Societies and Diocesan organization should be considered, and, if possible, more satisfactorily adjusted, so as to suit the altered condition of the church. Mr. Eales pleaded for delay, urging the good work done by the Societies as a reason for letting them alone. The reverend secretaries of the Church Missionary and Gospel Propagation Societies deprecated any change in the present relations between the Societies and the Bishop ; and after several other gentlemen, lay missionaries and others, had spoken, the Bishop said that he understood that the sense of the meeting was that he should take the matter into his own hands, and act to the best of his judgment.

THE Englishman :—" Not long ago a Calcutta merchant, on weighing a consignment of goods sent him by a new up country correspondent, found that it was many maunds short of the invoiced weight. He not unnaturally complained, and was informed that the local maund contained nearly double as many seers as the Calcutta maund. Acting on this information, and determined to verify his correspondent's weights, he reduced both the Calcutta weight of the consignment and the local weight to seers. Still there was a large discrepancy ; and this time he was informed that the Calcutta seer and the local seer were two perfectly different things. It will hardly be believed by those who get only a superficial view of our Indian civilisation, and who are not immediately concerned in commercial transactions dealing with native produce, or native statistical returns, that the savage state of things portrayed in the above anecdote prevails to this day throughout India ; and that not only in different provinces, but even in different parts of the same province. Now that railways have closely joined together all the various provinces of this empire, and that commercial intercourse is rapidly developing between the most distant localities, the inconvenience of the utter uncertainty that exists in all matters of weights and measures must be (and, we are assured, is) severely felt by the whole mercantile community. We are glad to hear that, on the motion of the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce, the Government of India has at length taken up the matter in real earnest, and will no longer allow the Act that was passed on the subject in 1871 to remain a dead letter.

THE following choice specimen of epistolary composition, written by an educated (!) Hindoo of Bombay, has found its way into a China paper, from which we take it—

Walkeshwar, 30th March, 1877.

It does not look well on the part of one, not acquainted with another, to suddenly hold epistolary correspondence with that other person. I do not know you personally ; but doubting whether I shall get entree of your goodself, I have had recourse to drop these few lines ; in doing which I commit no offence, nor any great sin. Whether rich or poor, great or small, men of note or obscure people, we all are admittedly sprung from one common stock ; and as such are brothers, at least in the sight of our Great Father.

I had never thought of asking from any man in the wide, wide world, what I do now crave at your hands. It is inconsistent with my family spirit to be a servant of somebody. But God wills that I shall be ; and crushes my spirit. I do now, therefore, request you to take me in, I solicit the favour of your bestowing upon me the post of the Head Clerk in the office of the Mofussil and Co. at Bombay, vacated consequent on the death of the old incumbent.

Sir, I do not pretend to have been " born with a silver-spoon in my mouth ;" nevertheless I have seen better days once. But those happy, palmy days have gone. The world has its vicissitudes, all sublunary things have their mutations and, in the changes and chances common to all, one has his Ups and Downs in life. Accordingly I have found myself 'out of pocket." However, rather than eke out a miserable existence by obstinately frittering away my time to no use, I should think it a part of wisdom to improve my acquaintance at the idea of serving, or being dependent upon, others. And hence (Nolens Volens) is my this humble supplication.

It may be questioned whether I am au fait (as the French always say) with the work of the office to which I hereby seek. But with due reference to your goodself, and noble self, I would humbly put in that none have ever come out from . . . . his mother well informed on all cosmical subjects. It is essential that each and every favorable being should take his lessons ; and after every prove whether or not he possesses a fine mind. One might not know how to wield a weapon unless he has been in the field ; but I dare trust myself to say that he does know at least how to hold it : and opportunity would teach him how to wield it.

Soliciting the favour of your favourable answer ; to yours most obedient servant,

THE writer of "Notes on News" in the Sportsman says :—"Ordinarily when people advertise in the newspapers they endeavour to make themselves understood in as few words as possible. Indeed it must frequently have struck the observant mind that those who pay for having their compositions inserted in the public press adopt a style infinitely more concise than that of the paid contributors to journalism. But whether the writer belongs to the paying or paid class of scribes, the newspaper-purchasing public has just cause for complaint if, instead of news, it is supplied with conundrums. In a Conservative contemporary we yesterday morning found the following, and have been not a little exercised in discovering its meaning :—' To the people of God in the Final Babylon—that is, in this great City of London—Awake ! Mark well Rev. xviii, verses 4 ; Rev. ii., verse 6, and other prophecy regarding her ; her cup is nearly full.' Naturally enough, we sought for information in the books referred to, and from their perusal have, after much trouble, evolved the following explanation. According to this view both in Revelations and Jeremiah it would seem that the London public is advised to go out of town, not only for the benefit of the health of the soul, but because, according to Revelations, we may look forward to a sick season, and because, according to Jeremiah, we are to have another fire of London or some equally great metropolitan catastrophe. If, as we suspect, this advertisement emanates from a general assembly of railway managers running summer excursion trains, we can but think it an unwarrantable misuse of the Old and New Testaments. Those Londoners who love the country in this beautiful baymasking weather will be anxious enough to get out of town without the encouragement of the railway people ; and it is positively wicked of them to try and drive the fashionable world away from the metropolis before the Goodwood week by the misapplication of Scripture texts."

THE Russian St. Petersburg Gazette publishes an article on the Russian Black Sea fleet. At the end of the Crimean war, it says, Russia was without a fleet in the Black Sea, since, being incapable of resisting the combined fleets of England, France, and Turkey—which, moreover, consisted mainly of steam vessels, while all the Russian ships-of-war were sailing vessels—she was obliged to sink her ships in the harbour of Sebastopol, in order to block up its entrance and prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy. The Treaty of Paris stipulated that in future Russia should only have transport ships and a few corvettes on the Black Sea ; but this stipulation was nullified by the Treaty of Versailles, and Russia then set about building a new Crimean fleet. "When we consider," proceeds the writer, "the short interval of six years which has since elapsed, and the immense difficulties which hinder the creation of a new fleet in those waters, we cannot wonder that Russia has only two ships on the Black Sea which are capable of engaging the Turkish armour-clad frigates. The first of these difficulties was caused by the universal conviction that no ships but ironclads should be built ; next, it was necessary to erect new dockyards and engage trained workmen for the construction of these iron ships ; finally, the naval budget of the last twenty years had already amounted to the enormous sum of 300,000,000 roubles." The two ships here referred to are the Novgorod, which was built at St. Petersburg, and put together at Nicolaieff, and the Vice-Admiral Popoff, so named after their inventor. The object of these ships is to protect Otchakoff and Odessa ; but the St. Petersburg Gazette thinks that "it would have been incomparably more advantageous to build, instead of these two 'Popoffkas' ten swift torpedoships, and ten gunboats." The Novgorod is a vessel of 2,491 tons burden and 480 horse power, and carries two 11 inch guns. The Vice-Admiral Popoff, of 3,550 tons, has an engine of 640 horse power, and two 12 inch guns. The remainder of the Black Sea fleet consists of four-screw-corvettes, the largest of which, the Woin, is of 1,829 tons burden, and carries ten guns ; the next, the Sokol, six guns ; and two smaller ones, the Lvica and the Pamyati Merkurya, with nine guns each. All these corvettes are of wood, and are fitted with such weak engines that they could not present any resistance to the Turkish ships. The Russian Admiralty has accordingly ordered them to be disarmed. There are also fourteen transport steamers, seven steamers for harbour service, and three steamers of the "Russian Society for Trade and Steam Navigation," the Argonaut, the Vladimir, and the Grand Duke Constantine, which have been armed with guns and torpedoes.

THE Russian National Anthem, with which the English public became intimately acquainted for the first time when the Duchess of Edinburgh landed on our shores, and which just now is mingling with the roar of cannon on the Danube, is of comparatively recent origin. The music, indeed, was composed by A. Th. Lvov so recently as 1833. It is not wanting in a certain stately dignity, but to be heard to perfection it should, it is said, be rendered by a Russian horn band, of which a writer in one of the monthly magazines gave a story at the time of the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh. The horn band, we are told, is one in which each performer sounds only one note, the instruments varying in length from a few inches to perhaps fifteen to twenty feet, and the sounds produced by them being made to fall into their places after the manner of band-ball music. On one occasion, Prince Potemkin, desiring to give M. Baillot, a famous French musician, a specimen of the music these horns were capable of producing, led him into a long, dark gallery of the Kremlin, where presently were heard strains which the Frenchman declared were like nothing he had ever heard on earth, and the method of producing which he professed himself quite incapable of conceiving. On light being admitted, a large band of soldiers were discovered at the far end of the gallery, all with instruments differing only in size, and each capable of producing only one note. Played on a band of this description, the Russian National Anthem is said to be very fine With regard to the words of the anthem, they consist of six stanzas, and are somewhat older than the music, having been written by Vassili Andrejewich Zjukowsky, a learned Russian, at one time editor of the European Herald, and who died about five-and-twenty years ago. The words of the Russian anthem compare favourably with our own somewhat doggerel rhyme. A fair idea of them may be gained from the first verse of a translation by Mr. Naake, of the British Museum,

"God save the Czar !
The Glorious ! Long life
Grant him on earth !
To the subdver of the proud,
The defender of the weak,
The comforter of all,
Send down every blessing !"

GOD SAVE THE QUEEN.

RAJA SIR T. MADAVA RAW, K.C.S.I., of Baroda, wrote last year on the subject of abolition of the sentence of death as a punishment in the cases of numerous Hindu widows who put an end to the lives of the offspring of their illicit intercourse for fear of society, which never permits them to re-marry. This paper, which appeared in the National Society's Journal, under the auspices of Miss Mary Carpenter, being circulated by the Government of India to various local Governments and administrations for the expression of their opinions. The subject, taken up in earnest by the powers-that-be, is one which will occasion a good deal of public discussion.

REFRACTORY SEAMEN.—J. Chalmers, J. Mitchell, and J. Wilson, of the British ship Anne Royden, were yesterday sentenced to three weeks' hard labour each in the House of Correction, by Mr. W. W-bb, for wilful disobedience in refusing to do duty on board that ship, of which they are articled seamen. The first prisoner was further convicted by the same Magistrate on two separate charges of assault preferred against him by David Shepherd, the chief officer, and W. Carachan, the sailmaker, and was sentenced to a further term of ten weeks' hard labour in the same jail; this sentence to take effect on the expiration of the first sentence. The other two prisoners were also further convicted by the same Magistrate of assaulting Francis Cameron, another of the crew of the Anne Royden, and was sentenced to a further term of four weeks each with hard labour in the House of Correction.

AT morning parade on the 10th inst., Colonel T. S. Browne, Commanding 83rd Regiment, Kurrachee, presented Sergeant-Major George Linder, late Quartermaster Sergeant, Aboo Sanatarium, with the medal and decoration for long service and good conduct. Sergeant Major Linder is a non-commissioned officer of long standing in the 83rd Regiment, and, by his strict attention and uniform kindness in the performance of his duties at all times, has gained the good opinion of all ranks. We congratulate Sergeant-Major Linder on the distinguished honour conferred upon him, and hope that he may long enjoy his justly earned reward.—The Beacon.

MILITARY SUBORDINATES P. W. D., BENGAL.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—The classified list P. W. D., corrected to 1st April 1877, has just been published, three months after date. I see by it that the prospects of military subordinates have been bettered, in so far that all the vacancies of the last four years have been filled up, except one conductor and one sub-conductor ; all else looks as gloomy as ever. Let us glance at the service of the senior of each grade,

Deputy Commissary	9 years	Conductor	5 years.
Assistant do.	5 ,,	Sub do.	5 ,,
Deputy Asst. do.	3 ,,	Serjeant	14 ,,

Total 37 years. The junior serjeant on the list entered the army 10 years ago, and supposing he was then 18 years of age, he can reach the same position as the senior warrant officer, when he is 65 years of age—provided promotion goes as heretofore, but to all appearance it will not.

Lord Lytton has adjusted the serjeants' roll, and ruled that every new hand takes his seniority as he joins the department. The Code provides for amount of service required for pension as follows,—vide chap. v., sec. i., paras 6 & 7 :—

28 years total service, including 12 in depart.
26 ,,	do. ,,	14	do.
24 ,,	do. ,,	16	do.

The old hands have now as much as 30 to 40 years, and why they are allowed to stick on in the face of the above ruling is, to say the least, absurd. If the Government would put the above rule strictly in force, and clear out all the antiquated old duffers who stick to the department like barnacles to a ship's bottom, it would earn our further gratitude. If the present rate of promotion is allowed to go on much longer, no soldier will join the P.W.D., or if he does he will have himself to thank, because this subject has often been publicly discussed, without as yet any good result. It is rumoured that the P.W.D. Minister has proposed to Government an increase of the Warrant of Grades. Whether this be sanctioned or not, the rules laid down in the Code should be put in force, or what on earth is the use of issuing a departmental code at all ?

The provincial system is a fallacy, for if the subordinate strength of some provinces, with equal sanctions, be compared, it will be found that some are double of others. The Central Provinces, for instance, costs a large sum, while Hyderabad is mulcted to make up for it.

It would be a good move if every individual, both Civil and Military, in the subordinate branch, whose promotion is retarded by obstinate seniors, were to petition Government that the Code rules might be put strictly in force ; if this were done, the P.W.D. subordinates could no more complain, for the rules are excellent and provide all that is required to reasonably satisfy every one. The old Code must have cost Government a good sum, which was worse than uselessly expended. It is to be hoped that the revised Code, now for three or four years in course of preparation, may be adhered to, when it does come out.

Sec. i., chap i, para. 21 of the Code can operate only as a snare and a delusion, for if it be compared with sec. iii., chap. v. para 13 and then with the fact that the senior serjeant has 14 years' departmental and 5 years' army service, total 19 ; (whereas 15 is laid down as the qualifying period for course of sub-conductor) ; it becomes very plain that the Code is only for form's sake, and is totally ignored as a regulation.

The subject should be well ventilated, and every one concerned should interest himself in the matter, for if we cannot better ourselves, we may do some good for those who are still in their regiments halting between the choice of remaining in their corps or joining the P. W. D. and staying in India FOR EVER.

CHOLERA AND ITS CAUSES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "BOMBAY GAZETTE."

SIR,—Those who expected very much from the answer to Mr. Doesabhoy Framjee's question will have been somewhat disappointed. Where is the Health Officer's report dealing at all with the "special" causes of this year's cholera it is in so hasty and hazy a manner that what is said has not much real value. For instance, the "overcrowding" of the city. We are not told its extent, nor the districts in which it was greatest, nor, in fact, anything more than that it is to be taken as one special cause of this year's cholera. Then it is stated that cholera was brought to Bombay by the famine-stricken immigrants and was worst amongst them. Was not the relief camp on the Flats got up for the sick of the famine-stricken ? And, although we did hear a good deal about disease among them, it was fever, not cholera, about which our doctors differed. But it is not necessary to consider the report in detail. Its rambling up appears to be that if Bombay would keep free from cholera it must have better drainage and plenty of pure water, and this must be accepted not only as truth, but as the truth that Bombay most urgently needs practically applied. And further—although in itself it is no answer to the question with which the Health Officer had to deal, accepted as it stands—it will lead us to a very sure answer to that question for ourselves ; for if it be true that Bombay's freedom from cholera depends on its drainage and water supply, and that Bombay has suffered from cholera this year more than it has suffered during the last ten or twelve years, then this also must follow that one or other of the two conditions of Bombay's freedom from cholera has undergone some material change, and it need hardly be asked on which the change has taken place. We have been lately hearing much about our bad drainage, yet it may be safely asserted that it is at least no worse this year than it has been for the past ten or twelve years ; indeed, we are entitled to assume that it must be, if anything, better, as the Improvement Trust have lately been made to exalt the administration of Dr. Hewlett, at the expense of his successor, it may as safely be asserted that the Health Department of the Municipality is now as well worked as it has ever been. In fine, though our drainage is deplorably bad, and nuisances of all kinds abound, yet even on all these combined, can any new element be found to account for this year's exceptional mortality. But with the water supply it is very different : on it a great and very serious change has taken place ; for whereas ten or twelve, or, say, only five years ago, nearly every district in this city possessed a full and constant supply of pure water, during the past two or three years this supply has been gradually curtailed. Until this year not a single district—it may almost be said not a single house in Bombay—gets more than intermittent dribbles of water, far from pure, and that at very uncertain times. Thus the Health Officer's own theory leads us to a very special cause, quite sufficient to account for this year's cholera. But we do not need to grope our way through theories to the truth on this subject : we have facts to guide us—and "facts are obiels that winna ding,"—and a few facts have tenfold more practical value to men of plain common sense than whole reams of learned discourses on the "etiology" of cholera. And the facts of this case may be thus stated. Prior to the introduction of the Vehar water, epidemic cholera, often of a very severe type, visited Bombay annually ; after the introduction of the Vehar water, or until the public supply was curtailed in order to meet the artificial needs of local speculators, cholera in any form was almost unknown in Bombay ; and last, but not least, when the curtailing of the water supply began cholera re-appeared, and its progress and virulence have been strictly in an inverse ratio to the decrease of the water. With these incontrovertible facts before us it seems almost a tax on our patience to be asked to listen to so much that has so small relation to the subject.

REVIEW.

THE PLEASURES OF DREAMING : a Poem ; by Thomas, E. Bolcham. Bombay Education Society's Press, 1877.

IT is not without a vague feeling of uneasiness, if not alarm, that we found ourselves called upon to form an opinion upon the merits of a new poem by a young author, as yet unknown to fame. We must confess, however, that the poem now before us has proved an agreeable surprise. Good rhyme and rhythm and absence of maudlin sentiment, if they do not guarantee a high standard of poetical merit, ensure at least that the reader's taste will not be offended by the commoner blunders of the youthful poet. These three qualifications are found in the poem before us, and we cordially recommend the "Pleasures of Dreaming" to the public as an early effort which promises much for the future ability of the young poet. We shall not enter upon a criticism of this poem, but we may give a word of praise to the author, for the terse, and yet graphic manner in which in the latter pages he describes his scenes and characters.

There are many passages which we might quote, but for want of space, we must content ourselves with giving the poet's estimation of Addison, as a fair sample of his powers, and with recommending our readers to procure this little brochure for themselves.

"In classic diction Addison prevails,
The gifted magus of a thousand tales ;
Learn of his prose teeming with thought sublime,
Drink of Pieonia's nectar of Pieonia rhyme :
He lights a newer era to his praise,
And lesser lamps convert it to a blaze."

MIDDLE. OLGA DUBOIN.

IT will be remembered that this accomplished pianist gave several pianoforte recitals in Bombay a few months ago, when her performances commanded profound admiration, her clear expression and charming style stamping her as a great musical artiste. We are glad to see her arrival announced at Poona, and that she may be expected in Bombay after giving a series of recitals in the former city.

IN THE COURT OF SMALL CAUSES.

(Before J. L. WARDEN, Esq., 2nd Judge.)

RUSTOMJEE BAPOOJEE vs. KNOOP & CO.

A CASE of considerable interest to merchants and brokers was argued, on Wednesday, before Mr. J. L. Warden, 2nd Judge of the Court of Small Causes. The plaintiff, Rustomjee Bapoojee, sued Messrs. Knoop and Co. for Rs. 214-10, being the amount of brokerage, at 4 annas per ton, on 1,717 tons of coal, due by defendants to plaintiff for having effected a contract between defendants and Fajal Goolam Hoosein for the sale of the abovementioned coal for the net value of Rs. 32,623. Mr. Jehangbir appeared for the plaintiff, and Mr. Winter (Messrs. Prescot and Winter) for the defence. There were a good many European brokers present, some of whom appeared to give evidence as to the custom which obtains in Bombay regulating the payment of Brokerage, &c. In this case the purchaser did not take delivery, and Mr. Winter contended that it was no fault of the defendants if the contract fell through. The coals had to be re-sold, and the defendants had derived no benefit from the brokerage. Mr. Winter further contended that as there was no written law upon the subject, he would have to show what the custom was in Bombay in such cases. Mr. Jehangbir, producing the document executed between the parties, stated that there was an implied if not an expressed contract. Those who guaranteed to pay were bound to pay according to law. Mr. Jehangbir cited from Chitty on Contracts (p. 496) from which, he submitted, the defence fell to the ground.

Mr. Winter objected that Mr Jehangbir was reading from notes on the reports and not from the reports themselves. Mr. Jehangbir replied that the reports were very costly ! The Court saw no objection to the notes being read, whereupon Mr. Jehangbir continued, remarking that the Court no doubt what he perused was all gall to the other side.

Mr. Winter—Mr. Jehangbir is giving an interpretation of the case which is like a sheet of blank paper to your Honor and myself. I am prepared with the evidence of the chief brokers in Bombay as to custom.

Mr. Jehangbir—Custom cannot go against law. After admitting brokerage is established, know whether the defence can call evidence as to custom.

Mr. Winter pointed to the words "custom or usage" in the passage referred to, as applied to a particular trade or generally. Regarding the document produced by Mr. Jehangbir, Mr. Winter remarked that the plaintiff had nothing on that piece of paper to prove his brokerage. His right lay outside that piece of paper.

His Honor—The law is quite clear, and I do not see that you can bring forward evidence as to custom.

Mr. Winter—Your Honor, I trust, will hear me through.

His Honor—But you do not deny that you agreed to pay ?

Mr. Winter—I do most distinctly deny it.

Rustomjee Bapoojee, in examination by Mr. Jehangbir—If the contract is cancelled a broker loses, but not if the contract is not cancelled.

Mr. Winter (to witness)—After such failure would you be surprised if you found yourself kicked out of the office when you went there again ? (To the Court)—The contract was not carried out and, therefore, was as good as being cancelled.

His Honor—I do not think there is any case for evidence to be gone into.

Mr. Winter—I must tender my evidence to the Court ; and I think I am entitled to produce evidence if the Court will hear it.

Mr. Marshall, who was first called by Mr. Winter, stated that he had been a merchant in Bombay for 12 or 13 years. He had had considerable experience in mercantile contracts of all kinds, and had been brought a good deal in contact with brokers of different classes. In his opinion where, in a case like the present, the contract fell through, or was not carried out, the broker would not be entitled to his brokerage. In Bombay it was not the custom to pay brokerage under such circumstances. Even in shipping contracts it was only customary to pay on what is shipped.

Mr. W. M. Tennent, who had been a broker, both in ships and coals, for nine years, was of opinion that any respectable broker would not charge.

Mr. Joshua Brooks, a coal broker, who had done a large business in coals during the last 8 years, stated that, under the present case he would not make a claim for brokerage.

This closed the defence, and after tiffin, witnesses for the plaintiff were called.

Mr. Joseph Flanagan, during his 14 years' experience, had never known such a question to have arisen, similar,—that is, to the present case. The opinion he stated was based upon his own ideas. If he were a broker in this case he was not prepared to say whether he would claim the brokerage or not. On being asked whether he would expect or demand his brokerage, witness replied that he would expect it but it was left to him to demand it or not. He had had dealings with Messrs. Knoop and Co. which were always conducted in a satisfactory manner. He had had a dispute with Knoop and Co. Had concluded a transaction about 7 months ago after the dispute, but none since.

Haji Ibrahim Haji Dada who was next examined, thought that, under the circumstances of the present case, he would be entitled to brokerage.

One more witness, a native of Cutch, was examined, when, after a patient listening to the arguments on both sides, His Honor gave judgment for the plaintiff, with costs, Rs. 15.

MEMORIAL AGAINST THE COTTON FRAUDS ACT.

Chamber of Commerce, Manchester, June 1st 1877.

DEAR SIR,—I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of the 7th ultimo accompanying report of meeting of the merchants of Bombay, and memorials to the Viceroy and the Secretary of State for India, relative to the opposition to the condemnation of the Bombay Cotton Frauds Act and of the new Bill on the same subject which passed the Legislative Council of India on the 3rd of March last.

The letter was duly laid before the Directors of this Chamber at a meeting held on Wednesday last, the 30th ultimo. I have now the pleasure of forwarding for the information of the Chamber copy of a memorial addressed to Lord Salisbury praying that he will withhold his sanction from the Bombay Cotton Frauds Act 1877, and am, &c.

THOS. BROWNING, Secretary.

J. Gordon, Esq., Secy. Chamber of Commerce, Bombay.

To the Most Honourable the Marquis of Salisbury, Secretary of State for India, &c. &c. &c.

The Memorial of the Directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce by their Chairman,

Respectfully sheweth,—That your memorialists are deeply interested in the promotion of a cheap and abundant supply of cotton, the staple of the industry of the district of Lancashire.

That in consequence of systematic frauds committed in the packing of Indian cotton the Government of India in Council made the practice of adulteration of cotton a penal offence, under the Act known as Bombay Cotton Frauds Act 1863 ; and as your memorialists are informed the said Act is now to be replaced by a new and amended Act, which passed the Legislative Council of India on the 3rd March in this year.

That in a letter from His Excellency the Governor of Bombay addressed to your memorialists in 1873, their opinion was requested as to whether the Cotton Frauds Act of 1863, "should be modified, abolished or maintained as it at present exists ;" and the reply duly forwarded to His Excellency was conveyed in the following resolution, (namely :—

"That from information received the Directors of the Manchester Chamber of Commerce believe that the condition of the cotton imported from Bombay has during late years materially improved, but they also believe that this may in some measure be attributed to the natural operations of trade, and the facilities now afforded to European merchants for dealing in the interior of India.

"That the Directors are not at present prepared to recommend the absolute repeal of the Cotton Frauds Act 1863, preferring that the Bombay Government should institute such modifications as the circumstances within their immediate knowledge, may appear to suggest."

That subsequent experience, abundantly confirms the opinion then expressed, and that cotton imported from India has maintained a uniform character for quality and reliable delivery into this country. That this is due, as your memorialists believe, to the improved facilities for selection by Europeans, where the cotton is produced ; and the perfect control the merchant now holds in the protection of his own interests, independent of any special legislation.

That special legislation applying to cotton, and which extraordinary circumstances and [illegible]ion of money was spent in [illegible]outh in a year. There had been until [illegible]t place where our soldiers and sailors could [illegible]n evening, or where they could take their sisters or wives. Miss Robinson had received a great deal of help from visitors in the work in which she was engaged. There was no limit as to what might not be done in that direction if she had help enough. She had raised nearly £14,0000 since she began, as she said, to "tout." There was a great deal of sentiment and also much sympathy with the work. Miss Robinson concluded by referring to the subjoined letter she had received that morning from Miss Florence Nightingale :—"May I from my sick bed cry for help from England for her soldiers and their Institute at Portsmouth, the great port for embarking and disembarking? If you knew as I do (or once did) the difference between our soldiers cared for in body, mind, and morals, and our soldiers uncared for—the last, 'Hell's Carnival' (the words are not my own) : the first, the finest fellows of God's making—if we knew how troops immediately on landing are beset with invitations to bad of all kinds, we should hasten to supply them with invitations to and means for good of all kinds. Remembering that the soldier is of all men the man whose life is made for him by the necessities of the service—he cannot go seeking work, better places, and proper recreations for himself, still less for his wife or family—if we realized what were the only places open to our men out of barracks—places not of recreation, but of drink and of vice, to the intense misery and degradation of men, women, and children ; if we knew, as officers know, the difference to the service of these men and of those ; ('Turn out the Saints, for Havelock never blunders, and his men are never drunk') we may not hope to make Saints of all, but we can make men of them instead of brutes) if you know these things as I do you would forgive me for asking you, if my poor name may still be that of the soldiers' ever faithful servant, to support Miss Robinson's work at Portsmouth—the place of all others of temptations to be brutes." The meeting was afterwards addressed on the general subject by Bishop Claughton, Chaplain General to the Forces. There were also present Colonel Sir Henry Havelock, V. C., Colonel Sir Henry Wilmot, V. C., M.P., General Taylor, Mr. John Holms, M.P., Mr. Charles Hood, Alderman Sir Robert Cardee, and many more. The Lady Mayoress and a large number of ladies were also present. Sir Henry Wilmot moved a vote of thanks to the chairman, and in doing so referred to Miss Daine, a benevolent lady who originated at one time a similar work at Aldershott with good results. At the instance of General Clarke a cordial vote of thanks was passed to the Lord Mayor for allowing the use of the Egyptian hall on the occasion, and with that the proceedings terminated.—Times.

THE CRISIS IN FRANCE.

(From the Standard's own Correspondent.)

PARIS, June 18.

THE hero of the day is M. John Lemoinne. On the boulevards, at the clubs, at the ambassador, in the train going down to Versailles, in the ante-rooms of Messrs. de Broglie and Fourton, in the shady alleys of the Elysee, the one topic is "l'article de Lemoinne." When you meet a man in the street the usual greeting is exchanged for "Vous avez vu l'article de Lemoinne ?" M. Lemoinne possesses the knack, essential to journalists as well as to generals, of seizing on what Prince Bismarck has aptly described, as the "psychological moment." In terse, pregnant sentences, clear and cutting as steel, he has put into black and white what everybody thinks, and he has done so in language that everybody can understand. Here is M. Lemoinne's article :—

"As it devolves on the press to give the Chambers an example of propriety and good behaviour, we will speak not only with calmness, but also with defence, of the Message addressed to the Senate by M. le President de la Republique. We beg Marshal MacMahon's pardon if we give him that title, which he appears to put up with not without some scruples and reluctance, for he never uses it himself. Far from reproaching him with his objection to call himself President of the Republic, we will consider it as highly creditable to him. It is a proof of his sincerity. As he recently informed a Legitimist deputation, Marshal MacMahon is a Legitimist by virtue of his birth : he is an Imperialist by virtue of his services ; he is an Orleanist by virtue of his personal relations. He had only to tell the deputation one thing—by virtue of what he was a Republican and on what ground he was call d upon to fulfil the functions of President of the Republic. It is the force of conscience which prohibits the Marshal from using an appellation which in his mouth would be a falsehood ; it became we understand and honour this sentiment that we will speak of the Message with calmness and without passion. The resolution taken by the President and his advisers will give the country a sense of relief. Everybody felt under the influence of the impostance. The Government pretended to uphold the Republic, and that was not true. The Chamber pretended to respect the President, and that was equally untrue. Thanks to the Chief of the State, these fictions are dispelled, and we can frankly state facts as they really are. So much the better ; every one can now afford to be truthful. In the Message, the Republic is not called the Republic : it is called the Constitutional law. The President of that—to name which decency forbids, declares his firm intention to maintain intact the institutions that govern us. Well, there is a short, conclusive reply which these assurances call forth ; it is this :—'We do not believe you.' No. France cannot believe, will not believe that the men who are now in power have any sincere intention of maintaining the Republic. The Government assures us that it means to maintain the Republic with the support of the Conservative party. If that were true, if it could be true, should we not be among its foremost supporters ? Have not our efforts ever been directed to the formation of a Conservative Republican party ? If, indeed, we had only before us the President of the Executive, and the President of the Council, we might feel a certain amount of confidence, if not in the result, at least in the sincerity of their efforts. But when we look beyond them, and see in what hands they are, and what hands they are compelled to see, one is irresistibly driven to this conclusion, 'It is not true.' That is really the state of the case. The Government may give all the assurances it thinks proper; the country does not believe a word, not a syllable of these assurances. Therefore, it was quite right to accelerate the denouement. The resolution of the Executive was sudden, but it was merely the issue of a long preparation. It was the explosion of a mine dug beneath the Chamber long ago ; and so we too may boast of having had a gunpowder plot. It is very fine indeed for the Government to describe Radicalism, gradually progressing along covered ways, to carry society by storm. Would it not be possible to turn this beautiful figure (of rhetoric) against the men who have been, since the last general election, engaged in an occult, underground, unremitting conspiracy against the suffrage of the country—against the constitution of which they are all lawful subjects, of which indeed some of them might be considered as the framers, and who, one fine morning, creep out of their back-stair recesses and their vestries, with ready made lists of prefects, sub-prefects, juges de paix, functionaries of every kind and degree, whose names they shake together in a box, and draw out by lot, as is practised in the lottery ? The truth is that this self-styled Conservative Government is nothing but a Government of conspirators. Conservative Republicans are reproached with marching alongside of the Radicals ; we should like to know how the Legitimists, the Bonapartists, and those who call themselves by the convenient name of Constitution-liest, find it possible to march together ! The Republicans of every shade and every degree pay allegiance in common to a form of Government under which they array themselves according to their opinions and proclivities. If the Radical party were to succeed in attaining office, in the first place we should see what its Radicalism really amounts to, and then in case of need should be prepared to organise a party of resistance. But we are curious to see the colour of that famous flag of the "party of order" beneath whose folds the coalised reactionists have arrayed themselves. We would like to see how these fast allies would behave towards each other, if ever they had to divide the spoils of victory ! These parties, whose mere juxtaposition is revolting to their own feelings, have but one object in common, the destruction of the Republic. As for ourselves, we speak of the Republic without enthusiasm : but we regard it as necessary, and we make a virtue of necessity, for the reason that beside the Republic we can see nothing but disorder, civil war, parties deadly hostile to each other marching together, while they hate and despise each other, and only await the time when they can say so and prove it. It is in vain that in their despair these people cling to the tree of '89, and try and shake off '91 ; there is a party for which all the branches are equally rotten, and doomed to everlasting fire. And that party is in office ; the house is its own property ; it will make you feel it, and turn you out if you don't obey. That party knows but one enemy—the revolution, to which it has shown undying hatred and war to the knife. When the Government tells us in the message that it means to respect existing institutions ; when it tells us from the tribune that it intends maintaining the independence of civil society, religious liberty, the results achieved by the French Revolution, we will not deign even to say that it wishes to deceive us but it certainly deceives itself. It may believe what it says ; we do not believe that which it believes. We repeat it, confidence is dead ; every fresh assurance given in the country meets with the most absolute incredulity. The country will never believe that the Government of to-day with its present composition and entourage, wishes to maintain Republican institutions ; the country refuses to believe it, and we refuse to believe it, because it is not and cannot be the fact. And for this reason the dissolution will be a relief for the country, for it will extricate it from a state of falsehood more hurtful and more dangerous than even a state of war."

This masterly expose of the situation states with perfect accuracy the real feeling of the country. The required corroboration it might be found in the columns of the Government journals.
